Preface.

THE College at Cumbrae was established in the year 1849. The primary object of the Foundation has been throughout the frequent Celebration of Divine Service by a Collegiate body, under circumstances favourable to religious learning ;—the second, Education. In regard to the latter, certain changes were made in 1853, the northern wing of the College, which had been assigned to the junior Scholars and Choristers, having been subsequently devoted to the reception of young men preparing for the English Universities, or residing there during the Long Vacation, or at any other period of the year, in preparation for the University Examinations. The southern wing of the College has continued from the first to be the residence of the Canons—of Clergy desiring to be received there for a time for rest, or special study, or literary labours—and of Theological Students.

The foundation stone of the Collegiate Church was laid on May 29, 1849, and it was opened for Divine Service on Whitsunday, 1851. The south wing of the College, or Canons' House, was opened on November 18, 1850, and the northern wing, then called the Choristers' House, on October 9, 1851. On the eve of St. Peter's Day, June 28, 1854, the Bishop of the Diocese was installed as Provost of the Church and College, which office he continued to hold until January, 1867, when he intimated his wish that the Rev. J. G. Cazenove, who for upwards of twelve years had acted as Vice-Provost, should be made Provost. The Founder assenting to the Bishop's nomination, the Rev. J. G. Cazenove was installed as Provost on February 24, 1867.

Cumbræ College.

THE Island of Cumbræ, on which this College is built, is situated near the entrance of the Firth of Clyde, and commands an extensive view of the beautiful Islands of Arran and Bute, with a portion of Ayrshire—a view of part of Argyllshire, and the end of the Grampian chain of hills. The north part of the Island is low, but as the visitor approaches the little town of Millport, on the east side of the Island the coast presents to his view bold cliffs covered with verdure, and a rocky shore—a portion of which has assumed the shape of a lion apparently entering a cave, and which has hence been called the “Lion Rock.” The Town of Millport* stands on the shores of a little bay to the westward of these cliffs, by which it is entirely concealed from the view of anyone approaching in the steamers from Glasgow or Wemyss Bay. As the vessel turns the extreme south-east point of the bay the different objects present themselves one by one, as in a panorama; first, the houses near the Pier,—then the Parish Kirk, standing on the high ground above the village,—then close to the shore, “The Garrison,” a residence of the Earl of Glasgow, the Founder of the College,—then the spire and tower of the Collegiate Church come in view followed by the other Collegiate buildings, standing on a series of terraces, in grounds which have been laid out with great taste and skill. The houses which stand on the eastern shore of the bay complete one of the prettiest home-views which the traveller will meet with in these parts.

Landing at the pier, and proceeding along the shore, the visitor having passed on the left the Garrison, arrives at a road which, passing between the grounds of the Garrison and those of the

* The Town or Burgh of Millport has according to the Census of 1871, about 1618 inhabitants, though this number is, at least, trebled in summer. It is about 35 miles distant S. W. from Glasgow, and is reached by Steamer in 4 hours, or Via Wemyss Bay Railway and steamer in 2 hours. Leaving London at 8.40 p.m. by Limited Mail, Passengers can arrive at Millport about 10.30 a.m. the following day.

College, leads to the principal gate of the latter. Passing through the gate the visitor finds himself within an enclosure of about twelve acres, and directly in front of the Collegiate Church and buildings, placed at the top of a succession of terraces, approached by flights of steps. The thickly-wooded and irregular copse, seen on the right of the entrance gate, will give an idea of the nature of the ground originally. Towards the left is seen standing prominently out, the Cemetery, which stands to the north-west of the Church, and is approached by a stone Lich-gateway at its western side,—a path running round the outside of the boundary wall on the north, west and south sides; the eastern end having for its boundary the slope of the terrace above, on which the Church stands. At the east end of the Cemetery, opposite the Lich-gate is a large stone cross similar in design to those in Iona.

From this point too, (for we suppose the visitor to be still pausing at the entrance-gate of the grounds,) the best view of the entire group of the College buildings is obtained. The Church occupies the centre, stretching from east to west, the west window is seen facing the spectator. The southern wing of the building is called the Canon's House, as being the residence of the Clergy, who are members of the College. Here also are lodged any other Clergy residing for the purpose of retirement and study, or as guests; as also the Theological students,—viz, candidates for Holy Orders, who, after having been educated at the University, are pursuing here the studies necessary for their sacred calling. The plate-glass windows, seen in the lower part of the building, give light to two spacious libraries, allotted to the Clergy and the Students respectively. The dormer windows in the roof light their bedrooms and studies, ranged on either side of a corridor running the entire length of the building. In the bell-turret, which with good architectural effect, breaks this length, are the bells, which are rung at certain hours for rising and retiring, for the private prayers of the College, &c.

The northern wing of the building is for the present occupied by the Provost and by young men either Members of, or preparing to enter the English Universities; its arrangement is similar to that of the south wing. On going up the flights of steps at the end of the broad entrance walk, and passing round the east side of the College, a cloister is seen forming two sides of a small quadrangle, intended to be completed hereafter, while beside it appear the end of the College Hall, and that of the Chapter House adjoining the Church, having five lancet windows. Both Church and College are built of the delicately coloured freestone of the Island, procured from a quarry within the grounds.

But to return to the entrance path ; on ascending the flight of steps we find ourselves on the first terrace,—the path leading forward by another flight of steps to a second terrace, and northwards by steps again to the Church. The tower and spire of the Church are most beautifully proportioned,—the spire being four-sided, terminating with a large iron cross surmounted by a cock ; the line of the spire being carried down to the ground by bold buttresses. The tower contains three bells, and a clock which chimes every quarter of an hour.

The Nave of the Church is entered at the south-western door. It has plain oak chairs for the use of the people ; and is lighted by four windows on the south side, and one at the west filled with stained glass, the gift of those who had been employed in building the Church and College. There is a row of several hundred gas-lights, running round the Nave. The pulpit stands on the north side. The Nave is separated from the Choir by a stone screen, having brass gates. The pillars on either side of the gates are of polished Aberdeen granite, and branch out above into tracery of stone, having in the middle an embossed cross.

The two massive gates are of polished brass, each having a finial formed of imitations of the fern leaf. The low screen is surmounted by a tracery in brass, consisting of a series of quatrefoils. The whole of the walls of the Choir, and the front of the screen and label of the Chancel arch are adorned with encaustic tiles of various colours arranged in patterns,—portions being filled in with Parian cement, for the introduction of paintings. The floor also has various patterns of tiles. On the roof are represented the ferns and flowers abounding on the Island.

The windows of the Choir are all of stained glass by Hardman. The south window nearest the Nave represents the Crucifixion of our LORD, with the words "IT IS FINISHED." The next, of which the colouring is peculiarly rich, represents our LORD'S Resurrection. The Choir is lighted, when necessary, by gas-lights, placed round the Choir-arch, and by a Corona, in the centre.

In the north wall of the Sacrarium is a stone Credence, with an Aumbrye closed by a brass door, which is pierced with tracery work. The Altar is duly vested, and has on it a gilt cross and brass candlesticks. The Altar Cross and the vessels for Holy Communion are richly studded with precious stones; those for the cross having been presented by a relative of the Founder, and those for the Flagon and Chalice by the Rev. F. H. Freeth, formerly Canon and Chanter of the College.

The east end of the Church up to the base of the east window is covered with velvet hangings. To the north of the Choir is an archway leading to the north vestry, in which stands the Organ, the pipes of which are painted with blue and gold. Beyond the vestry is the Chapter House, and from this a door opens into a little court paved in diamonds with black and white pebbles, which leads, on the left, to the north wing of the College, and on the right, to the cloisters, from which open the Dining Hall, and the residence of the Clergy, &c.

The Dining Hall stands between the court and the north cloister; it is a plain building, with an open high-pitched roof, an east window with stone tracery, under which stands the high table, for the Clergy and Graduates of the Universities, on a raised dais,—while the other tables for the Students &c., occupy the sides of the Hall. Passing from the Hall through the western cloister, we enter the residence house of the Clergy. Here are two large libraries, with three small studies, and a Sacristy communicating with the south side of the chancel. Upstairs are the dormitories, bath-room &c., and on the basement are the kitchen and various offices.

From the terrace on the west side of the Canons' House, a magnificent view of the mountains of Arran and the surrounding scenery is obtained,—and, descending from this, along a path which leads to a copse overhanging the quarry, from which the stone for the buildings was procured, at the southern extremity of the College grounds, we come upon another view of the coast of Ayrshire, the Little Cumbrae, and far off in the distance, in the midst of the sea, Ailsa Craig. Above the path last mentioned, is another terrace, on a level with the cloisters, on which a bowling green has been formed for the use of the members of the College.

At the south-west corner of the grounds is the School, which is attended by upwards of 70 children, and also a house, at present occupied by the Chaplain at the College.

Constitution.

EPISCOPAL RATIFICATION.

“WE, ALEXANDER, by Divine Permission, Bishop of Argyll and the Isles, do by these presents make known unto all faithful persons that we have carefully considered, and by the advice of our Diocesan Synod have formally ratified and confirmed, the Constitution for the Collegiate Church and College of Cumbrae, presented unto us by our well beloved son in CHRIST, George Frederick Boyle, founder of the aforesaid Church and College, which hereinafter followeth.”

PREAMBLE.

IN THE NAME of the FATHER, and of the SON, and of the HOLY GHOST, in One Glorious and Undivided Trinity, Three Persons, and One GOD.

“I, George Frederick Boyle, considering how blessed a work it is to rear a Temple to the Most High God, wherein His praises may be duly celebrated, His Sacraments administered, and His Holy Word preached; and considering also the spiritual necessities of this Church and Diocese, and how needful it is that Priests, Deacons and other Ministers of the Church should be maintained and educated, who may constantly offer unto Him the Sacrifice of praise, and make known unto men the unsearchable riches of CHRIST, have caused to be erected a Collegiate Church with a College attached to it, which I have offered and dedicated to the Third Person of the ever blessed Trinity, under the name of the "Church and College of the HOLY SPIRIT," with the Constitution following; and have moreover provided an Endowment for the Provost and Canons, who shall serve the aforesaid Church, aid the Bishop of the Diocese in feeding the flock committed to his care, and train in sound religion and useful learning such Students and Scholars as may be resident within the College or its precincts."

I.—The Dedication.

The Church and College are dedicated more especially to the honour and glory of the Third Person of the Ever Blessed Trinity.

II.—Of Episcopal Jurisdiction.

The Provost, Canons, and all other members of the Foundation, being in full communion with that portion of the Church Catholic now commonly called "The Scottish Episcopal Church," are under canonical obedience to the Bishop of the Isles, and subject to his authority as all other Clergy within his Diocese.

III.—Of the Visitor.

The Bishop of the Isles shall be, ex officio, Visitor of the College with all the powers inherent in that office. No bye-laws enacted by the Chapter shall be valid until they have received his sanction. No Missions shall be undertaken, but in his name and by his commission. He shall be requested to hold a Visitation twice in the course of each year. It shall be in the power of the Bishop to remove or suspend the Provost or any Canon, whether actual or honorary, for breach of the Statutes, habitual neglect of duty, or any other grave error in life or doctrine, if the charge brought against him shall be considered, by the majority of the Chapter, as fully established; nor shall it be in his power to appeal from such sentence to any Court, Civil or Ecclesiastical.*

IV.—Of the Chapter.

The Chapter is intended to consist of a Provost and, at the least three Canons. The Provost and Canons shall be appointed by the Bishop and the Founder jointly. The Chapter shall hold a meeting at such a time as the Bishop or Provost may determine, and is empowered to draw up such bye-laws as from time to time may be needed. Resident Canons shall be entitled to three votes in Chapter; non-resident Canons to two votes; honorary Canons to one vote each.*

* This Statute is given as amended by the Bishop and Chapter.

V.—Of the Provost.

To the Provost shall appertain the government of the entire Institution; the direction (under the Bishop) of all Missions undertaken by the Canons, or other Clergy attached to the College; the charge of the fabric of the Collegiate Church, grounds, and buildings, jointly with the Founder; and the Cure of Souls within the College, and on the Island likewise, so long as the Chapel of Saint Andrew is served by the Clergy attached to the Collegiate Church.

VI.—Of the Canons.

The Canon next in rank to the Provost, shall be the Vice-Provost. To him shall ordinarily be entrusted the care and education of the Students, and the management of the household department. One of the Canons shall, if need be, assist the Provost or Vice-Provost in the education of the Students. The other Canons shall undertake such Missions as the Bishop and the Provost shall appoint.

VII.—Honorary Canons.

There may be Six Honorary Canons; Three appointed by the Bishop, and Three by the Founder. They may officiate in the Collegiate Church, and shall be entitled to a seat in the Chapter, and may deliver their opinions orally or in writing.*

VIII.—Of Aged or Infirm Clergy.

A limited number of aged or infirm Clergymen (appointed by the Bishop and the Provost), may be permitted to reside in the College, or in houses within its precincts, and to officiate in the Collegiate Church. They shall be severally required to bring a "bene decessit" from their late Diocesan, together with the usual Testimonials, and on their presentation, will receive from the Bishop license (which shall be revocable) to reside within the precincts of the College, and to officiate in the Church; and without a license no person shall be considered entitled to reside.

IX.—Of Divine Service.

Morning and Evening Prayer shall be daily used in the Church, and the Holy Eucharist shall be celebrated, at the least, every Sunday, and on all Holy-Days

X.—Of the Students.

The Provost shall receive into the College a certain number of Students. They may consist of young men preparing for one of the Universities, or spending in the College the Long Vacation for the purpose of study, and of persons who after their University course are preparing for Holy Orders, or of persons who are about to enter some Theological College. No Student may ordinarily be admitted who is not above sixteen years of age (in the case of those preparing for the Universities), and in all cases they may be required to produce such Testimonials as are satisfactory to the Provost.

XI.—Of Intercession.

Special Intercession shall be offered up for those who, on tempestuous nights, are in peril of shipwreck, or of other disasters at sea, in these, or the like, words :—

Versicle. “Let us pray for those who voyage and are in peril.”

Response. “Hear us, O GOD of our salvation, Thou that art the hope of all the ends of the earth, and of them that remain in the broad sea.”

Collect. “O GOD, Who, when Thy Apostle Peter walked on the waves savedst him with Thy Right Hand, and deliveredst his fellow Apostle Paul the third day from shipwreck on the open sea; favourably hear us, and stretch forth Thy Right Hand to save and defend such as voyage and are in peril, and bring them safely unto the haven where they would be; and mercifully grant that we and all Thy servants may attain unto the haven of everlasting rest; Who livest and reignest with the FATHER and the HOLY GHOST, ONE GOD, world without end. Amen.

GEORGE FREDERICK BOYLE.

 Additions to this Constitution, or alterations therein, may be made by the Bishop of the Diocese with the concurrence of the Founder; but none such will be made without the assent of the majority of the Chapter.*

It is purposed that the Church and College shall eventually become the “CATHEDRAL SEAT OF THE ISLES,” within the United Dioceses.

ALEXANDER EWING,
Bishop of Argyll and the Isles.

Objects of the Foundation.

“The chief ends and objects for which the Church and College are founded are these :—

“1. The worship and service of Almighty GOD by daily prayer and frequent celebration of the Holy Communion.

"2. To seek to promote the welfare of the Diocese by placing at the disposal of the Bishop a certain number of Clergy, who under his direction shall minister to such members of the Church as cannot afford a resident Pastor, and would otherwise be precluded from many spiritual privileges; and further to afford assistance to the Clergy of the Diocese when from time to time it may be needed.

"3. To afford a retreat to a limited number of aged or infirm Clergymen, who, incapable of active pastoral labour, seek to spend the close of their life in the worship and service of Almighty God, and in preparing to render an account of their stewardship.

"To afford education and maintenance to two or three Students preparing for the service of the Church, more especially in the Gaelic districts.

"It is further intended to afford assistance in their studies to a certain number of young men before and during their University course, and to such as desire to read in the College in preparation for Holy Orders (ordinarily after having taken a University degree.)

Of the Clergy.

"It is intended that a Provost and from four to six Clergy shall be attached to the Church and College.

"Certain of them will be . (A.) . . Resident.
. (B.) . . Missionary.

"(A) The Clergy in residence will consist of—"The Provost.

"Two of the Clergy (one of whom shall be Vice-Provost), engaged:—

"1. In serving the Collegiate Church.

"2. In the education of Students, before and after their University course.

"Two or three aged or infirm Clergymen, incapable of active pastoral labour, yet desiring to spend the remainder of their lives in the daily worship and service of Almighty God, serving in the Collegiate Church.

"(B.) Two of the Clergy (at the least) will eventually be placed at the disposal of the Bishop, and ready to act as supernumerary Clergy in the Diocese, and undertake such Missions as he may direct, so soon as a sufficient income has been provided for those in residence.

“It is intended that lodgings in the College, or in houses within its precincts, shall be provided for the aged or infirm Clergy; but until such time as an endowment is raised, they will be expected to maintain themselves.

This statement of the objects of the Foundation and the Constitution, as given above, together with the Statement as to the future position of the Collegiate Church in the Diocese, received the approval of the Synod of Argyll and the Isles, held at Lochgilphead, August 3, 1853, and it was unanimously resolved—

“That the grateful thanks of this Synod be offered to the Founder of the Collegiate Church and College of Cumbrae, for his great liberality in founding such an institution; which is calculated to be of the utmost importance and utility in forwarding the best interests of the Church: And further, that this Synod having adopted on the above basis this Church and College, as an integral portion of the working power of the Diocese, prays that Almighty GOD may sanction and bless the same, and render it conducive to the best interests of His holy religion.”

Preparation for Holy Orders.

GRADUATES preparing for Ordination are admitted into this College, and will reside in the same building with the Clergy; each having a Bed-room arranged to serve the purpose of a Study, and the use of a Library as a Common Room; and will receive assistance in their studies.

Facilities are here offered to such as either intend to obtain, or have already obtained, the Certificates of the Theological Professors at Oxford or Cambridge, either for entering upon, or pursuing still farther, the course of study required for those Certificates.

Terms, including Rooms, Board and Tuition, £82 per annum; the period of residence being about nine months in the year: or at the same rate for any period of not less than three months.

Preparation for the Universities.

YOUNG Men preparing for the Universities, or, in some cases for a Profession, are received into this College, under the immediate care of the Provost and the Assistant Tutor. None are admitted who are not above the age of sixteen. Each Student, as a general rule, has a Study and Bed-room, and also access to a Library as a Common-room.

Terms—For Rooms, Board, and Tuition, £105 per annum; or £82 for such as have a Bed-room serving also as a Study.

The College will be found suitable for such as are about to enter Universities at a somewhat later period than usual.

Vacation Students.

MEMBERS of the Universities are admitted to read during the Long Vacation, or at any other period of the year when there may be rooms vacant. Terms—Ten guineas per month.

Temporary Retirement for Clergy.

THE want of some place to which the Clergy may retire for a while from active duties, for the purpose of rest or Theological Study, has often been felt in the English Church.

Such an opportunity is now offered in this College. Clergy desirous of admission for these purposes are requested to make application to the Provost, from whom they may learn all particulars as to expenses, &c.

There is a library used as a Common Room. The Clergy take their meals in Hall with the rest of the College.

Students on the Foundation.

THERE are certain Studentships or Exhibitions connected with this College, which reduce the expenses of the holders to about £30 per annum. One of these Exhibitions is entirely free. Preference is given, to ex-choristers, and sons of Clergy serving the Scottish Episcopal Church. They are open to competition, the requirements on the part of Candidates being as follows:—

1. They will be expected to show a fair acquaintance with the Church Catechism, and with the rudiments of Scripture History.

2. They will be examined in some one of the four Gospels in the original Greek and also in some one Greek Author, such as Xenophon, Homer or one of the great Dramatists. They are at liberty to select which Gospel, and which work of a profane author they may prefer.

3. They will be examined in some one of the following Latin Authors, Virgil, Horace, Cæsar, Livy or Cicero. They may select which they prefer.

4. They will be expected to translate into Latin, without the aid of a grammar or dictionary, a few lines of simple English prose.

5. They will be expected to show some acquaintance with Arithmetic and the rudiments of Geography, and so much knowledge of the History of Scotland as might be gathered from the first series of Sir Walter Scott's "TALES OF A GRANDFATHER" or any similar book.

Members of the Universities are expected to wear the gown of their degree in Hall.

The Members of the College take their meals in the College Hall with the Clergy. They are generally expected to be present at the Church Services, and to conform in other respects to the regulations of the College.

Choristers.

A CERTAIN number of boys duly qualified to sing in the Choir are received on the Foundation of the College. According to present arrangements they are under the charge of the Organist and reside with him in a house adjoining the College grounds. They receive instruction in music and a plain elementary education, and if found suitable are (at the age of sixteen) eligible, after competition, to Studentships on the Foundation.

Terms—£12 12s per annum. Two months holidays in the year, during the months of May and November.
